BETHEL

Mrs. Amelia M. Grover Dead—Richardson's returned from North Carolina. Pageant—Heavy Snow Fall.

Mrs. Amelia Matheson Grover, widow of the late Carter A. Grover, of Albany, passed away Sunday, April 15, at Hyde Park, Mass., being ill only from Tuesday before. No alarm was felt until Saturday, when pneumonia developed and the end came at six o'clock. The news was a great shock to her near relatives and many friends in Bethel and Albany. Mrs. Grover was born in Providence, R. I., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome and Mary Aspinwall Matheson and granddaughter of the late Justus Aspinwall of Hunt's Corner, Albany. When young, her parents moved to Hyde Park, Mass. In her many summers with her sisters, Minnie and Annie, spent at her grandparents' home in Albany, she met her future husband. They were married in 1893 at Hyde Park, and settled on Mr. Grover's farm in Albany, where they lived nearly all of their married life. Mr. Grover passed away at Albany in August, 1905, since then Mrs. Grover has spent her summers in Bethel and winters in Hyde Park. She was a member of the Bethel Church, and of the Bethel and of the Christian Church, and the Society of the church at Albany. She always retained her membership in the Methodist Church where her parents attended a service, and she was privileged to meet. Funeral services were held Wednesday, April 18, at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Manley, 43 Charles St., Hyde Park. Of her near relatives, Mrs. Grover was survived by her sisters, Mrs. Mary Aspinwall Matheson and Mrs. Annie Taylor and her daughter, Gladys, who is now Mrs. Foster Sweetser, whom she was with at the time of her death, 145 Beaver St., Hyde Park, and her nephews and nieces, all of whom will sadly mourn and miss the loved one. The many family connections and friends of Maine extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved family and friends and deeply feel their own personal loss.

The pageant, "The Chances and the Cup," was given by the Congregational Church, Sunday evening, the 15th, by the Girl Reserves.

Mrs. Ida Thompson of Dixfield has been a guest of her son and wife, Church Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Jones and baby, of Lewiston, Mrs. Mary Jones of South China were recent guests of Mrs. Harvey Jones' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Bean and son, Saturday night, there was quite a fall of snow, 5-12 inches in depth after Sunday morning, a surprise, as it was thought a rain storm was pending.

Recent visitors of Mrs. A. E. K. Grover were: Mrs. Fred Chapman, Pleasant View Farm; Mrs. Harry Brown, Brown Road Farm; Mrs. Anna M. Miller, Mrs. Nellie Burbank, and Mrs. E. R. Perkins. The Woman's Farm Bureau has appointed a committee to arrange for an observance of "Better Homes Week."

Oxford County United Parish

Including Albany, North Lovell, East Stoughton, and the Waterfalls. Pastoral Staff: Revs. W. I. Bull, B. F. Wentworth, A. C. Townsend

The religious drama, "Sainte Claudie," staged by North Lovell talent and first given at North Lovell on Easter Sunday evening, was repeated in the South Waterford Grange Hall last Sunday evening. In spite of very unfavorable weathering conditions, a good audience was present, and all were anxious to see the drama of which they had heard such favorable reports. And they were not disappointed. The rendition showed fine dramatic and careful preparation. It will probably be repeated in other parts of the parish, and possibly outside in the near future.

This week sees social gatherings in all parts of the parish, a Circle supper and entertainment at North Waterford on Tuesday evening, a Circle supper and Church Night program at Waterford Community House on Wednesday evening, a young people's "Every-Other-Thursday" at East Stoughton, Thursday evening.

The Council of the United Parish will hold its next bi-monthly meeting in the Waterford Community House, May 3. The special speaker will be Dr. Clarence F. Kimball, State Commissioner of Public Health. A parish committee on public health will be elected by whom it is expected that health matters within the parish will receive attention in the future.

The Congregational Churches of the parish should be sure to elect two delegates to attend the annual State Conference at Dixfield, May 8, 9 and 10.

The moving picture that will be shown throughout the parish next week is a film of Zane Grey's story "Desert Gold."

Rupert Greenleaf, who has spent the last two weeks with his father-in-law, Chas. York, returned to his home in Brockton, Mass., on Saturday. He hoped the ice would go out of the lakes that he might do a bit of fishing, but so far the ice remains in both lakes. Mr. Greenleaf with Lena York, Mrs. Mary Howard and Mrs. Marjorie Kingman, motored to Bridgton on Wednesday. They found bad mud holes when they turned out and had to be hauled out by the passing horses.

W. J. Greene is recovering fine from his recent accident and will have no stiffness in the knee joint.

Wednesday night a large crowd attended the supper at Grange Hall with Mrs. Ida A. Holden and her helpers, Mrs. Pearl Bradbury, Mrs. Alice Bell, Mrs. Clyde Millett, Dorothy Holden and Thais Brown in charge. It was one fine supper as are all these suppers. The comedy, "Our Gang," came first and none have ceased to wish they could keep young like the grandmother in that comedy. "The Little Minister" was just fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles of the Easter play, was repeated on Sunday evening, in Grange Hall. Not as large an attendance as we would desire, owing to the bad storm. The play was fine and every part well rendered. The North Waterford players who played this religious drama have made for themselves a reputation in other work in dramatic line. Lesson for April 29

THE COST OF DISCIPLESHIP

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-27; 12:41-44.

GOLDEN TEXT—Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Loving Jesus Best of All.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Putting Jesus First.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Supreme Choice.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Peril of Riches.

1. The Rich Young Ruler (10:17-27).

1. His question.
"What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" This young man was in earnest. He came running and kneeling to Jesus. This question reveals a void in his heart. He was a young man with a loving character. Jesus beholding him, loved him. He was moral, honest, earnest and courageous, but had a defective theology. He thought that eternal life could be obtained by good works. Though he claimed to have kept the law, he was conscious of lacking something. He was willing to do something to fill up that which was lacking, therefore he came to Jesus to make inquiry as to that lack.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 18, 19).

He knew the young man's heart and put His finger on the weak spot in his life. Jesus reiterated the commandments. The young man averred that he had all his life kept these commandments, but when it came to parting with his possessions in order to help his neighbor he parted with the Lord, going away sorrowful.

3. Lacking one thing and yet lost (vv. 21, 22).

When the Lord pointed out to him that the defect in his life was the love of money, he was unwilling to pay the price. When the time came in his life to choose between eternal life and riches he chose wealth and parted company with Christ.

4. The peril of riches (vv. 23-27).

Jesus said, "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God." When He discerned the astonishment of the disciples He answered again and said, "How hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." The difficulty does not lie in the fact that a man possesses riches, for one may possess riches and still be an heir of the kingdom. Wealth is a mighty power. In itself it is good. It will provide bread for the widow and orphan, amelioration for the suffering, and send the gospel of Christ to the ends of the earth. The peril of riches lies in trusting in them. However, the step from possession of riches to trusting in them is a very short one. The tendency of growing wealth is to destroy the noble life of the soul. So long as a man possesses riches he is safe, but as soon as riches possess the man he is in deadly peril.

11. The Widow's Mite (Mark 12:41-44).

Jesus had spent a strenuous day and was now quietly watching the surging throng. Observe:
1. Jesus sitting over against the treasury (v. 41). The treasury was the place where the worshippers deposited their tithes and offerings. Jesus sat where He could see them drop their money into the chests. He saw the poor casting into the treasury their small coins and He also saw the rich bringing larger coins. It is a solemn truth that Jesus' eyes always behold the gifts of the people. We may be able to conceal them from the people, but we cannot conceal them from His eye.

2. A certain poor widow threw into the treasury two mites (v. 42). The mite was the smallest copper coin made. The mite was worth about one-eighth of a cent, therefore her offering was one-fourth of a cent in value.

3. Jesus said unto His disciples, "Verily I say unto you that this poor widow hath cast more in than all they which have cast into the treasury" (v. 43). The Lord estimates gifts by the motive of the heart, not by their amount.

4. Gifts are measured by what the giver has left, not by what was given (v. 44). This widow cast into the treasury all that she had, even all her living. The rich gave of their abundance. Though their gifts were much more than that of the poor widow, yet they had an abundance left.

This woman's influence goes on. Many devoted Christians have followed her example and have given their all.

On God's Presence

Let us build our cottage so that every window may look out on the mighty Alps of God's presence; and that we may live, and move and have our being, beneath the constant impression, "Lo, God is here."—F. B. Meyer.

Constantly this Jesus is putting Himself into hand-to-hand. He is no distant helper, no far-off and simple lecturing teacher.—Dr. Wayland Hoyt.

Real Hunting in the Maine Woods

Once When Newton Stowell of Dixfield Was Lost in the Woods

Oh, Mama. What do you know about that. As we read on, we learn that this happened, thirty eight years ago, and that Mr. Stowell, is one of the most prosperous business men in Oxford County to-day, so these few lines will not seem quite as serious as the title would indicate. Mr. Stowell and the writer, after working all the season in the Dixfield corn shop, making cans, packing sweet corn and labelling cans, all under the careful management of our superintendent, George Marsh, decided to take a week's vacation at Webb's River Falls, hunting and trapping and anything along the line of out-door recreation.

One cold November evening of the season mentioned above, we were very busy purchasing our supplies, and packing them so as to get an early start next morning. Our outfit consisted of two double barreled shot guns, one rifle, and fifty steel traps, and three heavy blankets. Eatables, quality featured rather strong, and quantity was strong, while tea and coffee only, that could be served in liquid form.

So very early next morning, we carried the outfit up to the little boat that sat in the river just a little ways from the old church on the hill, where the writer attended regularly in those, that were my happy days.

We pushed the boat away from her landing and we were upon our way to our happy hunting grounds and the little camp five miles up the river. Yours truly was at the old while Newton handled the paddle very skillfully. Soon we came to the Thaddeus White bridge. For quite a distance while under the bridge and just above, the current is very strong. Should you doubt my word, ask Walter Howard, now at the Oxford mill. Once over these rapids we had smooth water for two miles, we slipped along as easy as getting money from home. Soon we came to Moose Rips, and here we had to use all the power we possessed for about ten minutes.

Oh, No: we did not hear the Oxford whistle blow, for the land where the Oxford now stands, was good hunting grounds at that time. We pulled ashore and ate a small lunch. We did not tarry only a few minutes. After rowing one-half mile, we came in sight of an old barn that sat only a few steps back from the river, that was used in those days as a store hay that was cut upon the meadow close at hand. I am sorry to say, that at this writing, I cannot recall the owner's name. However, that old barn has sheltered the writer through many a thunder shower. Another mile, and we drove into the little Eddy at the foot of the falls. This is one of the most beautiful sheets of water that the writer ever saw and I have taken many a picture from it. We crossed the Eddy, unloaded the outfit, made the carry up around to the head of the falls and in fifteen minutes we were at the camp door.

This good old camp was owned and maintained by the boys of that good little village of Dixfield, my old home town, and I am proud to say that I was a member and tried to do my little part.

We carried everything but the boat, up to the camp, built a fire, had supper on the way in a hurry, after we had supplied the wants of the inner man. Each lit a Blackstone, filled up the stove with the best of hard wood, sat back upon the deck seat and talked over plans for the day following. Newton suggested that we make a trip through the woods to Half Moon pond. So we decided to take the trip the next morning, before we put our line of traps out. It was nine o'clock and we turned in upon a mattress that contained the beautiful odor, of fir balsam boughs and soon we were asleep.

Next morning, long before daylight tin dishes were rattling. We fried a liberal batch, of life-size flap-jacks, made a dish of coffee that was strong enough to walk, fried bacon, opened a can of pure maple syrup. You know the rest.

It was a clear crisp autumn morning. And we were quite a distance from camp when we noticed the reflection's of the sun as it capped the peaks of the lofty mountains in the west. We took plenty of time, stopping at short intervals, and carefully looking at the virgin timber of which that region had plenty in those days.

We reached the pond at about eleven thirty a. m. sat down on an old fallen tree and ate our lunch. There was an old sweet apple tree close by with many of its branches broken off and lying upon the ground, some were as large as a man's wrist, this was evidently done by a bear. After resting for nearly an hour, we started along the shore of the pond towards the outlet, soon we came to a small clearing, and an old hovel. Near it was a small hay stack, and up went a flock of partridge. Newton landed two, while I played a close second in bringing down one. We loafed around here for an hour or so.

We started for camp upon a southeast course and after walking nearly an hour, we came back to our little hay stack, and up went the birds. I landed a couple this time. Newton, was very soon leaving the open for another trial, saying that we will pull into camp this time, Emerson.

Newton was a woodsman of many years' experience and I am positive this was the first time he ever was, bothered, to speak of, in the woods. However at this particular outing, that little haystack seemed to have Newton hypnotized, and in twenty minutes, we were in sight of our starting point again. Now upon a few minutes of summing up, we decided, that either Newton or the camp were lost.

In, and 3:30 p. m. and the November days were pretty short in those old growth swamps and we decided to follow an old logging road, though pretty well grown up to bushes, out to the river, and follow it's course down to camp; the sun was setting and darkness was fast approaching, when we reached the river.

Listen! Camp four miles away mostly low and swampy ground to travel. No light, nothing to drink, nothing to eat except river water, no boat, no trail to follow but the river, and I often wished we had not even that. Hungry! Yes, sir, and a long long way to camp. It was a dark night and it was no presumption following the sharp crooks in the river. Newton stopped all of a sudden, saying there was never anything so bad but what it could have been worse. Oh, what could it have been, at this particular moment. Oh, Boy! What if the boat and camp were upon the opposite side of the river. I get you, Newton, and we push forward. Our next stop was at the camp door.

Here is where that old and true motto appealed to us: Home is home. Let it be ever so humble. We soon had the old stove up to blowing off pitch, and it was quantity, not quality, that we were interested in, and we scurried together what could have been called a picked up supper, and there was no kick coming, and we turned in, as soon as lunch was over.

It was eight o'clock when we built the fire next morning, had breakfast and dinner all in one and started out for the trap line to put our traps out a few feet by setting the first trap only a few feet from where we hiked the boat and setting them all the way along at short intervals, where we could see signs, for one and a half miles up river towards the John B. Staples farm. It was ideal muskrat trapping grounds all along, all still water, and our boat would drift which ever way the wind happened to blow. We made all sets so that the trap would be a couple of inches under water with the chain extending out into deep water as far as possible with a strong stake through the ring and drove well into the mud. This being done so the mink and rats would nearly always drown, when caught in the trap. While if the stake were set so they could get ashore, ninety-five per cent of your catch, would either gnaw or twist their leg off and escape.

Niagara "Kolo" Dusting Materials

The New Dusts you can see Stick

give more permanent protection from each application

These "Kolo" Dusting Materials have sticking properties not found in any other dusting material. They may be applied with equal effect to either wet or dry foliage, and after once "set," will stick for weeks throughout rain and wind. This dust is a visible sticker. You can see it plainly without lens or microscope. Experiments demonstrate that this sticker dust retains a larger percentage of sulphur on the leaf surface for a longer period than is the case of "Lime Sulphur" Solution, or most any other liquid spraying material.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

This is General Motors Proving Ground

A birdseye view of the 1245-acre Proving Ground maintained by General Motors to assure the quality and value of its cars and trucks.

1. Entrance to the Proving Ground. The group of buildings includes complete experimental and service shops, engineering offices and comfortable living quarters for resident and visiting engineers and for the driving crews. The Proving Ground personnel numbers more than 200 men.
2. The 4-mile high-speed loop. The largest in America, made of concrete, with turns banked to permit continuous high-speed operation. In addition, the Proving Ground has two concrete straight-aways 1 1/2 miles long, as level as a billiard table, and miles of brick, tar, gravel and dirt roads which reproduce every driving and weather condition.

3. The hill-test road. Test hill grades at the Proving Ground range from 7.26 per cent to 24 per cent. The grades on public highways seldom exceed 7 per cent.
4. The "bath-tub." A depressed concrete roadway which is filled with water at varying depths to reproduce flooded roadway conditions.

Here each General Motors car must prove its value

On a 1245-acre tract near Milford, Michigan, convenient to all its car and truck divisions, General Motors has the first and largest proving ground for automobiles.

Here tests are made and facts determined to a degree impossible when cars and trucks are tested on the public highways. Here each new model of General Motors must prove itself, point by point, before it is produced for sale to the public.

More than 135 different tests are applied to each car tested at the Proving Ground.

They involve every phase of construction and performance: power, speed, endurance, acceleration, braking, steering, handling, riding comfort, fuel economy and so on. In three months a car or truck covers more miles than you would drive it in three years.

The Proving Ground is another example of how General Motors is serving the public. It is also your assurance that when you buy a General Motors product you are getting all possible quality and value at its price and the advantages of a policy of continuous improvement.

Look at these values—then clip the coupon

The current models of General Motors cars are briefly described below. Never before in the history of the automobile industry have such performance, such quality, such comfort and such beauty been offered in their respective price classes. They have been proved at the Proving Ground!

See which car or cars interest you most, then check and mail the coupon below. You will receive complete, illustrated information, together with two interesting little books telling all about General Motors Proving Ground and just what General Motors policies are.

(All prices F. O. B. at the factories)

Artists' Exhibition

The annual spring exhibition of the Portland Society of Art is being held at the Sweet Memorial Art Museum at Portland. There are sixty-two artists exhibiting and it is said that not in years has an annual exhibition at this museum held such a pleasing variety of subjects and schools of painting, and this is the largest number of Maine artists seen at a single exhibition. All of the paintings represent the best contemporary artists. The following are of special interest to Oxford County people:

Anne Cary Bradley—Annie Cary Bradley of Fryeburg has called one oil, Poplar and Clouds. It is simple in composition and effective. The smoky blue of the poplar, the water thrown back beautiful reflections. The Joshua Norwood House is a rugged old, plain weathered Maine farm house, with the remains of an ancient perennial garden in front.

The Dogwood picture "Interior" is a conventional interior view that might have been composed for an interior decoration magazine.

Woods in Winter is also conventional—an out of door scene. One finds many such in Maine—the pines, oaks and foot tracks and the outline of the woods roadway being the only break in the smooth, unmarred surface of the snow.

Harriet M. Pike—Another prominent Maine artist is Harriet M. Pike of Fryeburg. Her Chinese Lanterns is a study of the flower of that name; A Breath of Spring is spring flower, and A Bit of the Orient, another still life with lanterns, dolls, and so on.

Ethel M. Dana—Ethel M. Dana shows a quiet view of Bear Pond in South Waterford. The thick evergreen woods grow close to the pond at one side, beyond there is a smooth white beach and a farmhouse in the distance. In her November, a Maine mountain is a feature. Leaves still cling to the trees; the grass has not yet felt the killing effects of frost.

The Hillsides shows a far hill. There is a farmhouse on its sides and the fields are pleasantly tilled. There are patches of new growth in the woods, and in the foreground, dark vines outline the hill from which the view is seen.
